HARRIS FILES
$7,500 BOND

Makes Hearing Necessary On City Bond Issue

BLOCKS ANY SALE

Hearing Holds Up Disposition of Proposed Issue

Bond in the H. M. Harris injunction suit against Port Arthur's $1,000,000 bond issue, set at $7,500 by Judge George C. O'Brien in 58th district court Monday, was to be filed with the court by an indemnity company today, according to word received here.

A date for hearing the injunction petition to restrain the city from disposing of the proposed bonds will be set by Judge O'Brien, as a result of the filing of the $7,500 bond.

Reduced From $10,000

The bond was reduced from $10,000 to $7,500 by Judge O'Brien upon petition of attorneys for Harris that the $10,000 bond be cut to $5,000. Original bond fixed by Judge O'Brien in the case was $10,000, but this was raised to $10,000 upon a plea filed by Vernon J. Wistner, city attorney, and Fred A. White, assistant city attorney.

It was pointed out by the city attorney's department that a $10,000 bond was asked to protect the city in case any loss might be sustained on the proposed bond sale because of the injunction filed against it.

Special Venue of 150 Jurors
Drawn Today

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 6.—George McNeil, 35-year-old white man of Port Neches, charged with assault, will go to trial Monday, May 12, at 10 o'clock.

A special venue of 150 men as jurors in the case were drawn this morning.

The new 88th district court grand jury returned the indictment against McNeil at 2:45 Monday afternoon. Following the charge by Judge Kristen, they went to executive session.

No other business other than the indictment was transacted and the grand jury adjourned until May 19. County Attorney Marvin Seurdel was called to Bellairs on account of the severe illness of M. S. Scoblock's mother, and since the county attorney must be in the county when the grand jury is in session, it was necessary that they adjourn.

McNeil is now in the Houston jail where he was taken for safe keeping by Deputy Sheriff Artie Pollock about a week ago. Feeling against McNeil ran so high that Sheriff Garner thought it best to take him out of the county until he should come to trial.

There is every indication also that a change of venue will be asked in the case, and the contention made that McNeil cannot obtain a fair trial here. He was due to have a preliminary hearing, but when friends and relatives of the girl gathered in the court room, the hearing was not held for fear of violence, officials said.

JUDGE McDOWELL LEAVES $15,000 ESTATE

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 6.—The will of the late Judge E. A. McDowell signed and executed in 1900 was filed for probate Monday. Mrs. Laura McDowell, widow of the judge, is named independent executor of the will without bond. All property, amounting to about $15,000 is given to Mrs. McDowell.

BOX WRITES ON REFORESTATION BILL

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 6.—County Judge B. B. Johnson received a communication Tuesday morning from Congressman John C. Box expressing the hope that the Senate would further correct or entirely prevent the proposed wrong with reference to the proposed reforestation bill.

The Jefferson county commissioners court passed a resolution against the bill, explaining that the finances of the county would be depleted if the proposed bill were passed. Box, declaring this morning that the majority of other Texas counties also were against the bill and had adopted the same position as the Jefferson county court.

NEGRO ACCUSED OF SLAYING ANOTHER

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 6.—Avery Williams, negro, was taken to the county jail Tuesday morning and a charge of murder filed against him. Williams and Days Marks, another negro, had a fight several nights ago, at which time Marks was seriously cut. He died at Hotel Dien Monday afternoon, and after his death Williams was charged with murder.

PORTE ARTHUR PROPOSED NAME FOR OLD STREET

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 6.—A petition signed by a number of Beaumont citizens will be presented at the city council meeting tonight to change the name of Railroad avenue to Port Arthur avenue.

Railroad avenue now connects with the Port Arthur road, and for this reason a change was asked. The contention will also be made that it should be made out of respect to the city of Port Arthur, where there is a Beaumont avenue.

SUIT AGAINST AUTO CONCERN IN COURT

Special to The News.
BEAUMONT, Texas, May 6.—Hearing in the case of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company against the Beaumont Cadillac company continues Monday morning in 58th district court. The suit was brought on account of alleged debt to the bank. The Beaumont Cadillac company, now out of business, was a branch of the Houston Motor company.

Local Furniture Men Acting With Move of National Scope

'Better Homes Week' Started Three Years Ago, Now Brings Many Demonstrations

Port Arthur furniture dealers who have combined to take co-operative advantage of the 'Better Homes Week' are keeping in touch with national step for the betterment of Port Arthur people.

"Better Homes Week" had its infancy in a movement started in 1922 by Mrs. William Brown Molan, an advisory council with Calvin Coolidge as honored head and Herbert Hoover as chairman. The movement is now in its third year, and throughout the United States has met with unanimous success and growth.

Nearly 500 demonstrations were held throughout the nation during its first year, and the movement was so developed last year that that number was doubled "and then some."

Organization Growth Rapid

As it became increasingly evident that the Better Homes in America idea was a force of great importance in the education of the American people to higher standards of house life, it was decided to put the movement on a permanent basis by incorporating the organization as a national educational institution; and since that time, such has been the case, it is believed that more and better demonstrations than ever before in the organization's history will be held this year, and Port Arthur merchants are to be as rigidly active in the education of local residents as any business men of other cities enjoying the week.

While the campaign is on in Port Arthur, furniture dealers will display the most modern economical values to be had anywhere; beautiful, attractive, wearable furnishings, the kind that make not only a home comfortable but a home beautiful will be displayed in gorgeous array.

"Feast on the Eye"

In the words of one local dealer, the "feast will be a feast, literally, for the eye, and the soul will rejoice from its beauty."

"Nothing gives the impression of culture and refinement," Bill Williams, who is offering a valuable prize in the competition and whose furniture company is taking an active part in the week for the betterment of Port Arthur houses, said today, "better and attractive furniture, the one big thing which we hope to bring to the Port Arthur people is the fact that one doesn't have to spend a 'young fortune' to obtain the types and classes of furniture that convey refinement and culture of the perfect home, but that the correct kinds can be purchased right here at home very very economically."

All to Remember Mother on Mothers' Day, Canvass Here

HOSPITAL BAY FOR BABY SHOW

83 Babes Born at Hospital
In 1923

National Hospital Day will be observed at Mary Gates Hospital on Monday, May 12, with the annual Baby Show and open house.

Arrangements are now being completed for the observance of the day and eighty-three invitations were sent out this week by Miss Elma Walker, hospital superintendent, inviting the mothers, whose babies were born at the hospital in 1923, to enter their babies in the Baby Show.

Prizes will be awarded the most perfect babies entered in the Baby Show, a first and second prize to the most perfect girls and similar prizes to the most perfect boys. The Baby Show will be held from 1 to 3 o'clock with Doctors M. Swearingen, W. E. Crumpler, T. W. Young, A. R. Autrey and Miss Martha Lawrie, public health nurse, serving as judges.

Open house will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock and the hospital will be open for inspection to all those interested. Miss Walker announced this morning that the public was invited to attend the open house on Monday. Tea will be served in the Nurses Home, with the nurses and members of the Women's Hospital Board acting as hostesses.

SPIRITED FIGHT ON

only one of the convention, it preceeded a big storm. Judge Campbell was called on to make an address and told the convention what he thought about the matter in hand.

It was at this juncture that the first fight on the convention floor was precipitated. W. H. Marion read a telegram from Congressman John Box which cited as fact that President Coolidge might fail to sign the immigration bill and asked the convention take cognizance of it. Marion went then into a eulogy of the congressman.

Box Forcs Secure Endorsement

The Box element worked fast and enact a coup which appeared to be the smoothest work of the convention. A resolution to endorse the congressman was rushed through even before the resolution committee report was in. J. D. Henley tried to check the endorsement and pointed out that the press was quoting Coolidge as favorable to the immigration bill and that Box was evidently mis-informed. This failed to stop the voting and Box was given a rousing endorsement.

The report of the resolution committee report next never mentioned McCulloch, Underwood or Collis, the main issues with which the air was surcharged, for a show down.

The Underwood fight came first. Rep. Quinn started it when he offered a motion of thanks to Underwood for his work in securing ship appropriations for his district.

"He has been good to us. We should appreciate him," Quinn said in a laugh.

Quinn turned the house upside down though when she shouted, "But I don't want him for president, as much as I appreciate what he has done for this district. Any man who votes against the Eighteenth amendment can not have my vote for the highest office in the land," he said.

Congressman Underwood

Underwood was from all parts of the house demanded the floor. Pan-democracy was master of ceremonies. Chas. Coleman of Port Arthur took the floor and championed the cause of Senator Underwood. Hemphill made a motion to table the motion of Quinn to thank Underwood for his kindness to the district. From a mass of parliamentary law the question was finally disposed of and tabled.

The fight for V. A. Collins was the most spirited of the convention. J. B. Morris made a play from the floor that the convention endorese Collins because of what he had done for them as state senator. A vote by precincts was at last called for and showed 190 and a half votes were against endorsing Collins and 114 and a half against. Many took the position they were for Collins personally but did not think the convention should split up to a gubernatorial candidate.

Delegates Named

The following were chosen as delegates to the Waco state convention to be held May 27.

You Hate to Look At a Pimply Face

There is perhaps nothing more distressing to people who are bothered with them, and nothing as displeasing to others who see them, as pimpled blisters, bumps, rash, scrofula, eczema, "breaking out" and similar skin disturbances.

But now that Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are proving to be so dependable in quickly getting rid of these diseases of the skin, it seems foolish for people to neglect using them and making themselves attractive to others instead of being shamed all the time.

All dealers have Black and White Ointment, and Soap, in the convenient, low-priced, liberal packages. The one size Ointment contains three times as much as the liberal 25 cent size.

ENLARGED NAVY BOOM STARTED

Resolutions Presented Congress for Investigation

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The move for rehabilitation of the navy was laid before the house Wednesday with introduction of two resolutions providing for a thorough congressional investigation of the fleet's status.

Representative Britton, Illinois and Representative Rogers, both Republicans, presented the resolutions. Both declared official reports had stated the navy to be far below the 6-8-3 ratio set by the arms conference and authorized investigations to determine what manner of construction program was required to bring it up to par.

Britton's resolution was explicit in its demand upon the navy department for information. Being 27 questions the secretary of the navy would be called upon to answer.

Among them are:

"Is it a fact that as a fighting unit the American navy is today in third place among the navies of the world?"

"How does the navy construction program compare with that of other first-class powers?"

"Is the United States in third place in submarine strength?"

"Is it a fact that Great Britain's 22 first line battleships have superior speed, greater radius of action, better torpedoes and aircraft protection and longer gun range facilities than have our 18 first-line speeders?"

An investigation by congress of the navy's strength was believed in legislative circles to be followed by a greatly enlarged construction plan.

AGED SISTERS

More than 50 years ago, the two sisters had come to America, with two brothers, from England. Trace of relatives was lost. The brothers moved west.

Year after year the sisters deluged, hoping against hope for a turn in their fortune.

Then, after half a century, an advertisement appeared in Boston paper. It read:

"Will Mrs. Peter Fenster and Mrs. Charles Sullivan, once of Liverpool, England, and Cambridge, Mass., communicate with Mrs. Sarah E. Elliott, New Haven, Conn., concerning important information."

Charles W. Sullivan, son of Mrs. Sullivan, read the advertisement. Mrs. Elliott was found to be the daughter of one of the brothers who had moved west. And the "important information" she knew was the first step in placing unremitted millions into the hands of two women who had toiled to the bones of life.

AUTO TURTLES, RANCHER AT CLEBURNE IS INJURED

CLEBURNE, Texas, May 6.—Albert Wren, wealthy ranch owner, was critically injured when his automobile overturned on the Fort Worth pike near here. Two compatriots suffered minor injuries.

ODD FELLOWS TO OBSERVE MAY 7

105th Anniversary Program To Be Given

A special program in commemoration of the 105th anniversary of the Odd Fellows will be held in the Port Arthur Lodge Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, officials said today.

The fire department made a hurried run to the scene and had the blaze under control within half an hour.

The house was completely saturated with gasoline oil," Fire Chief LaRosa said today. "When we broke into the building we could smell the gasoline more strongly than it could be smelled outside."

Pieces of bed-clothing, which the chief has in his possession at the fire station, were said to be saturated with gasoline.

The explosion was heard by several residents in the neighborhood of Dr. Jackson's home, and the house was enveloped in devastating flames before they could reach their yards, they said last night. One neighbor said he had seen a strange character loitering about the premises and had ordered him away. This neighbor told newspapermen that he also had smelled gasoline and that it had attracted his attention to such an extent that he had gone into his yard to investigate; it was this, he said, that brought him to discover the stranger loitering about Dr. Jackson's residence.

Winders Blown Out

A woman living near the residence told spectators at the fire that the explosion had blown out the windows. She noticed, she said, that later in the evening the shades had all been drawn, and she presumed that Dr. Jackson had returned home. The physician, however, had not been home all afternoon, and fire officials said they believe the fire bug who conceived the idea of destroying Dr. Jackson's personal effects and furnishings had drawn the shades to "work under cover."

A crowd of over a thousand persons were attracted to the scene and occupied the streets and side walks in the vicinity while the blaze was being extinguished.

PAPER NAVY OR BATTLE FLEET?
U. S. SHIPS LESS THAN 5-5-3 RATIO

The report of Admiral Coontz, commander of the fleet, on the results of the winter naval maneuvers should challenge the attention of everyone.

It would be difficult to imagine a more unsatisfactory state of affairs than the one reported.

It is not a question of big navy against small navy. Nor of naval competition against naval limitation. It is a question of ordinary common sense and economy.

Under the naval limitations agreement the United States agreed to keep within a ratio of 5-5-3 as regards the fighting tonnage of the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

That means a fleet equal to Great Britain and two-thirds greater than Japan.

And now what does Admiral Coontz find that we have?

A fleet that is not a fleet at all. A fleet upon which we are spending three-quarters of a million dollars per day and that is not a navy at all.

True, there are the agreed number and tonnage of battleships. But that is all. The guns of the battleships have obsolete elevation and would be impotent if opposed to the same caliber guns of other nations because of lack of range. The boilers of the battleships cannot stand practice steam pressure—say nothing of battle pressure.

The battleships are not adequately supported by cruisers, nor by submarines, nor by aircraft, nor by colliers, nor supply ships, nor repair ships.

The airplanes have not adequate carrier ships. The submarines have not tenders.

The destroyers, which, as units, perform well, could not support the fleet for lack of supply ships.

The matter of drydocks, filling stations and supply depots is even more discouraging. So as to mine-layers and mine-sweepers.

So it goes.

It would seem that the reduction in our navy's size has been made by cutting out essential arms of service tending to leave the remainder helpless and useless.

It seems certain that whether we are to have a big navy or a little one we should have an efficient one. The smaller it is the less need that every ton and every gun should be of the most effective type and that every battleship should be backed up by the finest possible and best organized auxiliary services.

Congress will be criminally negligent if it does not authorize a program and supply the money for a perfect naval machine—whatever its size.

And the Navy Department will be criminally negligent if that machine is not kept in absolute tip-top condition.

It would be murder to send battleships to sea unsupported by all the units that make a modern fleet.

What the country is paying for and what it has the right to expect and demand is not a paper navy but a battle fleet.

A paper navy is an invitation to war; a battle fleet is insurance against war.

ONE CROP FARMER

There are thousands of one crop farmers in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana. They plant wheat and nothing else. They buy their food from the grocers. They buy their can goods from the canners. They buy their hay to feed their stock from the feed dealers. They buy their poultry and eggs.

They sneer at the man who diversifies. They scorn the man who keeps milk cows, hogs and poultry. They have been one crop farmers for years. They followed their own heads. When wheat was high they purchased all the land they could buy and gave their notes for it.

Now four hundred little banks in the states named have been wiped out; two hundred little banks are in the hands of the receivers, holders of mortgages, long since due, are finding new purchasers and land is being sold at rock bottom prices.

A third of these one crop farmers have been wiped out; a third may weather the storm; the remaining third who kept out of debt and did not buy additional acres, in peak price time, are adopting the views of the crop diversifier and are at peace with the world.

Now the politicians of the northwest are asking that the federal government shall valorize the price of wheat and make it possible for the one crop farmer of the northwest to be carried by his government.

Of course the government is as poor as a pauper. All that the government has is taken from the pockets of the people. Jones pays. He carries the load. In years not remote the southern farmer raised bumper crops of cotton. In those years he was a one crop farmer.

In the future should he become a one crop farmer and flood the world with cotton he will be in the same position that the one crop farmer of the northwest is in and he may rest assured that the government will not fix a fancy price for cotton.

Whenever there is a surplus crop of wheat the world over the price of wheat is going to be very low and whenever there is a surplus of cotton the world over the southern cotton grower is going to be pinched.

THE NATIONS OF THE FUTURE

The nations which at present occupy noble interest and which take up most of the pages of history are the nations of Europe.

The day of Europe is past. That which shall bring it to a subordinate place is the tremendous advance in the means of transportation; transportation of goods, of men and of ideas.

That is, the steamship, the railway, the airplane, the telegraphic wire and the radio.

Frank Hoban, in a recent article, said that the six areas of the earth which have been selected by geologists as homes of truly great nations of the future are (1) Russia (2) China (3) India (4) North America (5) South America (6) Australia. Each is a natural geographic entity. Each will eventually support a stupendous population. Each will be driven on by its geographical and economic factors toward internal social and political unity. During the coming century, or possibly several centuries, the greater historical forces must work themselves out upon these primary areas.

If you will look at the map of the world on Mercator's projection of the human race, at least what we call its civilized history, has occupied but a small section north of the Mediterranean.

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Red Grange was declared last night. When war was declared, Nigel had to enlist. He leaves Dolly under the care of Mary Farnival. Nigel is the son of David and Mary Farnival, and David and Robert sail for America and word comes of the sinking of their ship. When Nigel's brother, David, fails to see Nigel's widow, Mary is admitted to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David mistakes Mary for his sweetheart, Red Grange with him and his aunt, David and his aunt welcome Mary when she comes to Red Grange. Mary is half the size of Dolly and she told Nigel as Mary loved him.

"But you will marry?"

"He shook his head.

"It's not very probable; I'm not the sort of man women care for, even if I wished them to." He smiled, looking down at her.

"Oh, but you mustn't think that!"

she told him impulsively.

"She just that you haven't met the right woman yet; some day she will come along, and then—"

"Yes, and then?" he echoed.

"Well, then, all the world will seem changed and different; you will wonder how ever you managed to live without her."

His gray eyes searched her face.

"Is that how one feels when one is in love?"

She looked up, and quickly away again.

"Oh, I—" she broke off.

"I am afraid I have been talking nonsense," she said distractfully.

They had reached the end of the path abutting the lawn, and David held open a little gate leading to a kitchen garden and paddock beyond.

"If it is nonsense, it's very charming nonsense," he said, smiling. "You make me feel that I have gained a great deal by being a bachelor."

She shook her head.

"I didn't mean that; it isn't all roses when you care for a person very much."

"Not even when they care very much for you in return?"

"But sometimes they don't," she told him. "And then—she broke off, wondering if he realized what her words conveyed, but he made no comment, and they walked on silently.

Once he stopped to speak to one of the gardeners; the man glanced at Mary and touched his cap respectfully.

"This is Mr. Nigel's widow," said David.

He did not look at Mary as he spoke, or he might have seen the sudden pallor that drove the color from her face; she turned abruptly and walked step away.

When David rejoined her:

"Sister knew Nigel, when we were both little boys," he explained.

"He was here on the estate as a lad in my father's time."

She did not answer; she was beginning to realize with a sort of horror what her deception really meant.

It was continually acted by her. She was proposing to live, day after day, taking the respect and attentions due to another—robbing the dead—robbing the dead.

CHAPTER XXV
At the Red Grange

Mary Farnival took the next morning to find Miss Varney at her bedside; she started up with a little exclamation.

"Is it very late? Oh, I am so sorry."

She glanced apprehensively at the little clock on the mantelshelf it pointed to ten.

A distressed flush creased her cheeks.

"Oh, I am sorry! I had no idea it was so late. I never sleep on like this."

Miss Varney laughed.

"I'm glad you have, my dear; you look worn out last night; I told them not to disturb you. Have you had a good night?"

Mary looked ruffled.

"Much too good, I'm afraid. I will get up at once."

"They're bringing your breakfast up to you. The fire has been lit already; you see; it shows how soundly you slept."

"It seems impossible."

Mary had been so sure that she would not be able to sleep at all, and now for nearly twelve hours she had slept dreamlessly.

A smiling maid brought her breakfast and set it on a small table close to the fire. It was all most delicious; the little teapot was silver; the tiny cloth of fine linen, embroidered with the crest of the Red Grange crest.

Mary looked at everything with a sort of awe. She had been used to such plain homeliness all her life. There was something luxurious and delightful in this new daintiness of surroundings.

She enjoyed her meal thoroughly; she felt new energy and anticipation thrilling her as she dined. The dullness of yesterday had gone; the sun was shining; sparrows twirled to each other in the fire that covered the face of the old house.

She went down the wide staircase and stood looking across the sunny garden with eyes that saw nothing. David came to stand beside her; there was a sort of compassion in his face.

"I hope you will be happy here—with us," he said. "I hope you will stay; I am anxious to be your friend. If there is anything troubling you, I wish you would tell me, and let me help you."

His voice sounded kind and sincere; there was nothing but earnest sincerity in his eyes; for a moment she longed to take him at his word, and make a clean breast of the whole miserable story, but something prevented her; she even forced herself to laugh a little,

Musical Tea by Symphony Club Is Beautiful Affair At Department Clubhouse

One of the prettiest of the spring entertainments was given at the Department Club yesterday afternoon when the Symphony Club entertained with a charming musical tea, the evening serving as the inauguration of "Music Week" in Fort Arthur, and as the annual Guest Day observance of the Symphony Club.

At vantage points about the large assembly room gilded roses and spring blossoms were clustered with artistic effect in vases, baskets and jardinières, while ferns and green foliage were bunched in the corners to form an attractive background for the lovely blossoms.

The tea table was especially attractive, being laid in a handsome Madeira cloth and set with the beautiful silver service and crystal bowls of exquisite pink roses. Mrs. Fred P. Dodge and Mrs. O. W. Keith poured tea, and were assisted in serving by Mrs. V. D. Mercer, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. H. T. McMullen and Mrs. O. E. Able.

The afternoon's musical program was one of the loveliest and most entertaining programs of the entire year. All the numbers were by Texas composers, and the program was sponsored by Mrs. Thomas Sappington.

Mrs. J. E. Grammier, soprano, gave two beautiful vocal numbers, "Fly Far, Sweet Happy Bird," by Horace Clark and "Night and Morning," by E. Clyde Whittle. Mrs. Sappington played Mrs. Grammier's accompaniment.

Mrs. Charles C. Perry's piano number, "Etude Impromptu" by Herald Morris, was charmingly rendered.

Two lovely vocal selections were contributed to the program by Mrs. E. J. McGuire, soprano, who sang two of Kathleen Blair Clark's compositions, "My Heart's Country" and "Love, Kiss Me." Piano accompaniment was given by Mrs. T. J. Twomey.

Mrs. O. G. Westmoreland gave two delightful piano numbers, "Rememberance" by Reuben Davis, and "Paul Von Katwijk's 'Gavotte and Air.'

One of the most interesting numbers on the program was the concluding song cycle, "A Wreath of Flowers" by W. J. Marsh and sung by Mrs. R. L. Drake. Mrs. Fred P. Dodge and Mrs. Clifford C. Hall, Mrs. Sappington played the piano accompaniment.

All the numbers on the program were graciously received. More than one hundred guests called during the afternoon hours.

WILLIE MAE BOCK CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Little Miss Willie Mae Bock delightfully celebrated her twelfth birthday yesterday afternoon at her home, 512 Sixth street.

The house was prettily adorned for the birthday party, and in the dining room a lovely birthday cake, holding twelve small candles, graced the center of the tables. The cutting of the cake afforded much amusement for the little guests. Interesting games and contests were enjoyed during the afternoon and in a context of musical chairs Florida Beauvais was awarded the first prize and the body fell to Jewel Webster. Delicious refreshments were served during the late hours of the afternoon.

Lady Slippers Club Enjoys Bridge Party

Members of the Lady Slippers Club were pleasantly entertained last evening at bridge by Miss Folmaine Vaystek at her home, 1031 Proctor street.

The home was in attractive adornment for the evening's diversion of bridge, two tables of players being assembled for the agreeable diversion. For success in the games, Miss Jessie Davis was awarded a handsome trophy. The favor for low score was presented to Miss Nina Dowdy. A lovely refreshment service was offered at the close of the games.

Players for the evening included Miss Marie LeMaster, Miss Nina Dowdy, Miss Ruth Corbett, Miss Ida Davis, Miss Frankie Mae Taylor, Miss Allen Johnston, Mrs. Gilbert Terry, and Miss Folmaine Vaystek.

The musical program is being given in conjunction with "Music Week," and will be in charge of Mrs. M. J. Panton. Mrs. Low requests that all members of the Guild attend Thursday's session.

HEADACHE GONE TIRED NO MORE

Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Hopes Other Women Will Benefit by Her Experience

Skowhegan, Maine.—"I was sick most of the time and could not get around to do my work without being all tired out, so I would have to lie down. One day when I was reading the paper I saw the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertisement and saw what it did for other women, so I thought I would try it. I have taken two bottles, and cannot begin to tell you what it has already done for me. I do all my work now and keep up the whole day long without lying down. I have no more headaches nor tired feelings. I hope every woman who takes the Vegetable Compound will get the same benefit out of it as I have."—Mrs. Francis W. Richardson, R. P. D. No. 2, Skowhegan, Maine.

You have just read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped Mrs. Richardson. Now have it a trial after she saw what it does for other women. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been doing good.

Miss Bringol Entertains E. K. Society

Miss Nona Bringol proved a charming hostess last evening when she entertained the E. K. Society at her home, 1822 Ninth street.

A collection of yellow and white wares presented the yellow and white theme which predominated in all details of the affair. Needlework gave diversion for the guests during the evening, following which the hostess served a dainty refreshment course and presented each guest with a pretty favor, a lovely yellow basket filled with yellow and white candies. Those enjoying the pleasing affairs were Miss Eva Jewel Gibbons, Miss Valerie Pruitt, Miss Janice Owen, Mrs. Sam Ransom Jr., Mrs. Neal Miner, Mrs. C. E. Boos Jr., Mrs. Victoria Miller, Mrs. L. G. Odum, Mrs. H. F. Baker, and little daughter, Fay, and Miss Nona Bringol.

Miss Eva Jewel Gibbons will entertain the club next week at her home.

Miss Phelan Hostess To Bridge Club

Miss Lydia Gene Phelan graciously entertained members of the E. K. Bridge Club and additional friends last evening at her home, 1829 Ninth street.

Lovely pink and white roses gave floral beauty to the home, the pink and white hues being reflected in the bridge table appointments and in the dainty ice course served at the close of the games.

Three tables of players enjoyed the games in which Miss Dovie Smith scored high and was awarded a lovely prize, a bottle of Black Narcissus perfume.

The personnel of players included Miss Dovie Smith, Mrs. Charles Hoag, Miss Virginia Miller, Miss Gladys Greenlee, Miss Ruby Edmonds, Miss Neila Cockrum, Miss Mary Higginbotham, Miss Velma Sandlin, Miss Mary Jack Leader, Miss Velma Gilstrap, Miss Jessie Gilstrap and Miss Lydia Gene Phelan.

C. E.'s To Give Mother's Day Program Sunday

A beautiful and fitting "Mother's Day" program will be given next Sunday evening at the Christian Endeavor meeting at the First Christian church at 6:30 o'clock.

Elaborate plans for an exhibition of fancy riding polo games and a steeple chase by members of the Dallas Bridle and Saddle club are underway, according to Otto Herold, president.

The club-members are already training their mounts for the show, Herold said, and dates will be announced soon.

"It will be the first exhibition of its kind in Texas."

The club holds a jumping contest, a three-quarter mile track and a steeplechase course of four and a half miles. It is said to be the first riding club in the South.

The program will be given by Sunday school authorities of the Endeavor department. All Endeavor workers are invited to attend this program. All who attend are requested to write or bring their mothers with them, so that the service may be made a truly "Mother's Day" service.

USE PULLMANS TO FIND MINES

Pioneering in Alaska By Railway Is Done Now

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, May 5.—Since the days of King Solomon, the romance of the lost mines has enticed mankind, and few mineral-producing centers have not from time to time nourished legends of fabulous deposits of gold, silver and copper.

Like all other gold countries, Alaska has its share of legendary rich spots—but through accident or death of the discoverer.

Such a mine is today lying prospectors to Montana Creek, on the Alaska railroad, where it is reported a rich placer was discovered in 1910 by A. Schneider, who passed away in a Seattle hospital while drawing a map purporting to show the spot on the creek where he secured several thousand dollars in nuggets and dust.

The map fell into the hands of an old-timer known as "Edwards the Fiddler," who, armed with the tracing, returned to Alaska and sought the Eldorado. Edwards dropped the map into a stream, and its indelible lines blurred, obliterating tracings. Since then dozens of men have labored along the creek, sinking dozens of holes to bedrock, but as yet no one has discovered the pay streak.

The latest to undertake the work of searching the treasure are E. Johnson and K. Hiedlund, prospecting partners of twenty-six years in Alaska. With an outfit and men are journeying to the creek and will prospect for the streak of yellow metal supposed to have been found by Schneider.

This time it will not be necessary, as it was with Schneider, to travel by dog-team for several hundred miles over almost trackless mountains and long, treacherous streams. The Alaska railroad crosses Montana Creek, and the modern gold-hunter travels on a Pullman to the scene of his diggings, or to within a few miles.

Another legendary rich placer lies back of Mount St. Elias, near the Alaskan-Canadian border. This mine was said to have been discovered by a cook, the cook of the International Boundary Commission, some 30 miles from the camp nearest Mount St. Elias. Several men have endeavored to penetrate the region from the Columbia River side, all claiming to have discovered the old markings of a trail; but in turn to have been balked by impossible barriers of snow-clad peaks separated by treacherous cañons and roaring, glacial streams. An effort will be made by prospectors this spring to trace the boundary survey and pick up the old camp from which the camp cook is alleged to have taken $15,000 with him in one season. After squandering his money in Seattle, the cook passed away without revealing the source of his gold.

Robbing Indians An Indoor Sport, Claimed

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—The assorted grafters who hang around the oil-rich Oagle Indians in Oklahoma are laying the foundations of fortunes which will be the prop of a new class of aristocrats, in the years to come," said C. D. Righter of Dallas, Texas.

Righter was en route to Venezuela, where he will survey new oil fields. He spent a good deal of the past year in the Oklahoma and Texas oil fields.

"I used to know some of the braves in college," said Righter. "This much is certain—the Indians will not long have their wealth unless they learn to tighten their belts. The government is gradually lifting restrictions which forbid certain classes of Indians to sell their lands. As soon as new land is exposed in this way the white adventurer goes after the Indian as he did of old, only with smooth words instead of with smooth-bore rifles."

TIME HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME

Lon Chaney, admittedly the most interpreter of unusual character roles on either stage or screen and whose work as the fake cripple in "The Miracle Man" stands out as a bit of remarkable acting, to say nothing of his other wonderful impersonations, has added another striking characterization to his already long list, in his appearance as Quasimodo, the title role, in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the massive picture production, based on Hugo's classic, which begins an engagement at the Peoples Theatre today.

There is probably no actor behind the footlights or before the camera today who is a greater master of the art of make-up than Lon Chaney.

His Fagin in "Oliver Twist" was an example of his proficiency in this line. Besides being a player of intelligence, with a keen sense of the requirements of a role, Chaney is an acrobat and contortionist, abilities which he is often called upon to use in his characterizations.

Some idea of the regard Chaney has for detail of make-up and why his Quasimodo in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is so remarkable and impressive in this line, may be gathered from the fact that he "was on the lot" at University City, where the magnolia production was made, each morning three and a half hours before the remainder of the company, his work of transforming himself into Hugo's unique character requiring that amount of time. No effort was spared by Chaney to make the deformed bell-ringer of "Notre Dame" look like what the famous novelist conceived him to be as possible.

Incidentally, throughout the day Chaney was forced to carry 72 pounds on his back. It was another one of his torture roles for which he later paid the penalty by spending three weeks in a private hospital.

"Realizing that I had been chosen to play probably the most difficult role ever presented on the screen," Mr. Chaney said, "a role that called for the greatest artifice in facial transformation, deduction of the body, mimicry, true life-like impersonation, I put into my work all of the talent and capabilities I possessed."

Never have I worked so hard, so faithfully, in presenting a characterisation. At all times I had the best and encouragement of Mr. Carl Laemmle, who had impressed upon me the fact that neither stage, effort of money, can be spared in making "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the greatest picture production ever turned out. Not only were we to be supplied with the biggest and most artistic settings ever used in film play, as near perfect atmosphere for the unfolding of Victor Hugo's story as possible, but we were cautioned that the portraits of the various roles would have to be on the same high artistic plane. The perfecting of this exactness in every detail required a long time, and the cost was stupendous, but I believe the results have justified everything that was done."

THE MARRIAGE CIRCLE

Since kissing is a universal language, and since its application to the movie action often looked upon as another of those three-minute would-be-love spasms, Marie Prevost, the dainty little star who is playing one of the leads in "The Marriage Circle," Ernst Lubitsch's first production for Warner Brothers, took sufficient time recently to explain her ideas as to just how kissing affects people in various walks of life.

Here is what Marie says: "Kiss causes a baby to be kissed."

"A kiss is the very life of a lover—he it on or off the screen."

"A kiss is a part of a mother's reward for her untiring effort."

"A kiss is labeled a crime in or out of the movies by reformers."

"To a sailor, a kiss is merely a fleeting memory."

"For authors a kiss is excellent copy."

"For the jazz composers it is poetry personified."

"And for the M. D.'s it's just a little risk."

"The Marriage Circle" is the central attraction for four days at the Peoples Theater now. In addition to Marie Prevost, the cast consists of Florence Vidor, Monte Blue, Harry Myers, Adolph Menjou and Creighton Hale.

Bunting bows set in gardens are being erected on top of many New York skyscrapers.

HELP FOR THE MAN WHO WANTS TO BUILD*HOW TO BUILD YOUR HOME WALLS RIGHT

By the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

In spite of all that may be said about the first economy of a wood wall and its qualities as a durable type of construction, it is plain that in some wooden houses are more difficult to protect than houses built with materials of a less inflammable nature, as, for example, stucco or brick. In our larger cities where houses must be built very close together, the wooden walls with wooden finish will not do at all. We must protect them with some of these other materials. Furthermore, a variety of materials is necessary to satisfy the tastes of all. Not everybody is satisfied with a brick house or with a stucco house. So for various good reasons our outside walls are built of various different materials.

Beauty in Brick Walls

Happily, this country is blessed with a quality of brick and stone which is hardly exceeded by that of any other nation on earth. Our bricks especially have a distinct quality of beauty.

In order to accomplish the external appearance given by a brick wall, but with a type of construction that as far as first cost is concerned is still a little below that of solid brick, we have combined brick and wood. The brick is the external finish of the wall only. It does not stand as part of the structure of the wall. The floor joists are supported on a framework of wooden joists almost exactly like the framework for a wooden finished house. Here again, in the interest of long life building, we must not forget that little board that is the key to the whole affair; namely, the diagonal brace. It is easy to forget this when you build. If you do not put it in, you will have plenty of chance to remember it.

Another way to finish a wooden wall is to put a cement coat over the stucco exterior. We have learned how to put this stucco on so it will stay on—so there need not be any element of fear about using such a wall. There are a lot of ways of experimenting with exterior stucco, using different kinds of materials to which the stucco will be applied, and using different kinds of materials in the stucco coat itself. Ordinarily, home building mortals run in where architectural angels fear to tread. Let your architect tell you what to do. He knows.

Solid Masonry Walls

Brick also can be used as a veneer on other bricks, or you may have bricks facing a tile wall. We often build solid brick walls or walls with air spaces in them.

Q—What makes the plastering along the side of my chimney damp?

A—Perhaps the connection between the roof and the masonry is not tight. This joint should be covered with metal flashing. Have your roofer look it over.

Q—Is it necessary to have the contractor bonded on a small house? What does it cost?

A—if the contractor you employ does not have insurance for some bonding and for dealings you had better not employ him. It is to such a reputation the bond will not give you much better security. If it means anything to your peace of mind require a bond. The cost is about $100 per $1000.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"What kind of a kite do you fly?" he asked.

The magic automobile with Nancy and Nick and Misses Muggs, the fairies, sped through Once-Upon-a-Time Land at about a hundred miles an hour.

It passed seven castles and seven meadows and came at last to the place where Jack the Giant Killer had lived.

Jack was out flying a kite, but when he saw the visitors he would up the string and come over.

He was extra glad to see Nick.

"What kind of a kite do you fly?" he asked when he had said "How do you do."

"Mine's a red parrot," said Nick, "but I like this kind better. Next time I'm going to get one like it."

"I'd like to have a box kite," answered Jack. "You know what they are, don't you?"

"I know a man," put in Misses Muggs, "who has a box kite, and he takes pictures with it. He has a camera fixed to it some way, and when he wants to take the picture of a mountain top or something very high, he sets up the kite and then pulls a string and that works the camera and the picture is taken."

All this time nobody thought of a giant.

"Some day when I'm a man," declared Jack, "I am going to have an airplane. I'm going to learn to do nose dives and tail spins, and how to bank, and how to loop the loop, loop, and if there's a war I'll chase the enemy. What are you going to do when you're a man, Nick?"

"Maybe I'll be a soldier or a policeman or a conductor. Or else I'll build houses and bridges."

"I'd like to lead a band and throw up a big stick and catch it," said Jack. "I'd like to wear a tall fur hat with a strap under my chin, and a red jacket off covered with gold braid."

And still nobody thought of much as mentioning a giant.

"When I grow up I'm going to wear a pink-pangalo dress and jump out of a balloon," said Nancy, although nobody had asked her what she was going to do. If girls want any notice they have to speak up for themselves.

"I've thought of that, too," said Misses Muggs. "But I'll have a little parachute on my airplane and I can jump out and come down whenever I want to."

"We'll have to be going now," said Misses Muggs. "It's a long way back and time is flying."

And then Nick remembered.

"Did you really kill and giants?" he asked suddenly.

"Serves," said Jack, as though he were speaking of autos or something. "Oh, yes, can you play baseball? I wish you could stay!"

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

"BORROWING" GREEK GODS

Perhaps you remember that in very early times, Greeks used trees as places of worship. It was the same with the Romans, especially those who lived in country districts.

One of our pictures shows a tree used as a shrine in Roman times. A graceful column supports the tree, which seems to be very old. A man who wants to pray is approaching.

There were many such shrines in Italy.

The other picture shows a coop containing "sacred chickens." If they were lazy when someone fed them grain and did not eat, or ate very slowly, it was a bad sign. If, on the other hand, they gobbed down the grain so eagerly that some of it fell from their beaks, it was a good sign; the person who was doing the feeding was sure to succeed in what he wanted to do. (That is what the Romans thought; you and I know it all depended on how hungry the chickens were.)

It is said that one Roman admiral tried the eating test with the chickens. They wouldn't eat, and he threw them into the sea!

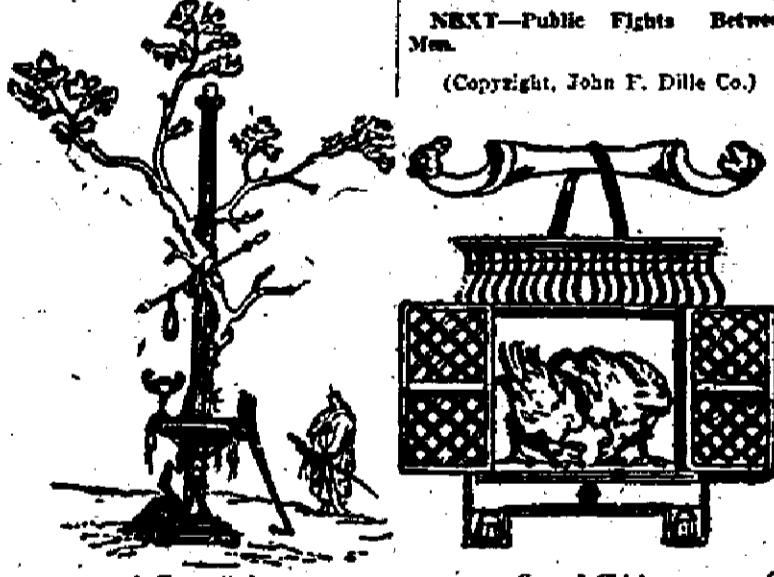

The Romans did not do much of their own thinking when they formed their religion. They "borrowed" most of their gods from the Greeks. Zeus was the chief Greek god, the Romans took him as their chief god, too, changing his name a little. They called him "Zeus, the Father." The way they spoke that was "Zane Pater."

In time they made one word out of Zane Pater—they said Zepater or Jupiter. Now we spell it "Jupiter."

The Romans spoke of the wife of Zeus as "Juno" instead of Hera, the messenger god. Hermes became Mercury.

Color Cut-Outs

Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary

"Your name ought to be 'Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary, How Does Your Garden Grow,'" teased Betty Cut-out, as her neighbor, Virginia, came out in the yard with her spindling can.

"Come on over and help me," invited Virginia, so Betty squeezed through the hole in the fence. She took the can and began watering while Virginia pulled a few weeds.

"Mo—OW!" yelled Fluff, the kitten, who had followed them.

"Oh, you watered Fluff!" screamed Virginia. "Did you think she was catnip?" And both girls laughed as Fluff scurried off.

Color. Virginia's apron green, and make her hat and blouse lavender. Her sprinkling can is bright red, her trowel is brown, and the poor little kitten is a soft grey.

SAYS DRY LAW RUINS AMBULANCE BUSINESS

HOUSTON, Texas, May 6—Prohibition has made its inroads on one business, in fact the ambulance business is irreparably ruined despite all figures to the contrary.

So says Charles Bader, driver for a local ambulance company.

"Saturday night! That was the time," beams Bader. "Why the newspaper boys use to fight for the telephone. Now they never come around; just walk up occasionally. We used to do ten times as much business. Liquor gave me a lot of business."

"Rush, rush, rush, it was then, but it is all over now," said Bader, reminiscingly gazing at his pride, the battleship-grey "Joy wagon."

SPECIAL NOTICES

NOTICE—To the Master Mates and Pilots Association, S. A. & P. A.—
My dear Friends and Brethren:

It generally is known that the Texas & New Orleans Railroad Company draw dividends from time to time on its capital or on upstream side of turning basin and docks in vicinity of Port of Beaumont will be closed to navigation during the month of May for the annual dredging replacement of old steel with new modern draw spans except in small areas at low water, of which there are about 15 feet vertical clearance and 45 feet horizontal clearance for which one 40 foot opening will be left open for navigation on the east arm of present draw span. H. M. L. chief engineer, T. & N. O. R. R. Co.

TWO VESSELS ARRIVE HERE

New Jersey and Currier At Refinery Docks

Arriving today from Antwerp, the Texas Company tanker New Jersey stopped at the quarantine station at Sabine for fumigation. The vessel docked at the Texas Company's terminals here before noon.

The Gulf Refining company's tanker Currier was expected to reach Port Arthur late this afternoon from Tampa, bringing a cargo of crude oil, according to radio advice received here.

After completing work of discharging miscellaneous cargo of canned goods and slingers at the Cotton docks Monday, the steamship Lake Gunnison shifted to the Texas Company's terminals to discharge shooks today. The Lake Gunnison arrived last week from the Pacific coast, going first to Orange to discharge shingles and canned goods and load out a parcel cargo of rice.

'WISHY WASHY' FOLK SCORED

Rev. Reagan Declares Religion Must Be Felt

Preaching an extraordinary sermon in which he expressed unusual points of view based on the change from the new to the old covenant, J. I. Reagan, evangelist of Dallas, spoke to a large audience at 7:30 o'clock last night.

"Kiss heaven good-by if you don't think of the Lord but once a week," Mr. Reagan said in speaking of those who go to church simply because they have got in the habit of it. This also applies to those who go to church just to see new hats or new clothes which the other people are wearing, he added. "If that is the only kind of religion you have, you will never make the Kingdom of God."

"You have sinned and violated one of the principles of the Lord's word if you fail to come together on the Sabbath day," he said in emphasizing that the Lord commands that people gather together on Sunday to worship or they will be lost.

In connection with joining the church, Rev. Reagan said, many people excuse themselves from not doing so by claiming that there are too many hypocrites in the church.

"Would you rather be in the church with a few hypocrites or out in the world with many?" he asked the audience. "The hypocrites will be cast out and only the good people will remain at the final reckoning," he added. "If you are in heaven you will be redeemed and associate with the redeemed people."

In emphasizing this point he said that only the best people on earth will be in heaven and those who will be happy that they were in the Kingdom of God while they were on earth. For one in heaven will be associated with only those who are perfect.

Rev. Reagan expressed himself as opposed to those people whom he termed "wishes-washy" who are willing to compromise all of the time. Be what you are, he advised, and stand for the truth of God, as you see it, even though you may be wrong, stick to it until you find that you are wrong then make a change.

"Do things of the Lord whether you see any sense in it or not," he said. "Do what the Lord says do and live in Christ's world if you are to be saved."

The revival services are being held at the Church of Christ Tabernacle, 1601 Sixth street, twice daily, at 10 o'clock in the morning and 7:30 o'clock in the evenings.

Subjects announced by Rev. Reagan, the evangelist, Wednesday night "Sin," Thursday night, "The Preacher's Duty," Friday night, "Who Loves? God or Man?" Saturday night, "Seeking the Lord."
